Considering a job change or looking to see how your company stacks up against the best in our region? We've got the list for you.

Below, you'll find the 14th annual Best Places to Work survey, and our honorees are the 110 Greater Washington companies that scored highest among hundreds of employers that participated in Omaha, Nebraska-based Quantum Workplace's annual employee engagement survey.

The Best Places to Work results are quantitative, based on survey responses from employees themselves, rather than a panel of outside judges. The data doesn't lie — these companies are scoring points with their workers for perks, leadership, office space, culture and more.

Rankings of the Best Places to Work honorees will be announced later this year at a special awards event at MGM National Harbor. Honorees will also be featured in the May 8 issue of the Washington Business Journal.

How did these honorees make the list? Nominated businesses meeting criteria for business location and size are invited to participate in employee engagement surveys distributed by Quantum Workplace. Based on the results of those surveys, businesses are assigned a score out of 100 percent and ranked by Quantum. The top-rated companies in four size categories — small, medium, large and extra-large — are honored by the Business Journal as Best Places to Work.
